ARTIFACT

Untitled #1, 2012, acrylic on cardboard, 17.3 x 16.9 in Ingelore Kreienborg's looming and tremulous markmaking and use of color evoke the gathering point of fading perceptions and the focus of newly emerging interpretations that include the persuasive unraveling of closed systems. Playfulness and paradox allows us as viewers to conceive of parts of infinite spaces, voids within fullness.

Artist's often-outsized loops and calligraphic like segments careen and hover inside the picture planes of brightly colored grounds. She suggests, metaphorically, that there is a range of metaphysical musings on time and space which is induced by her mark-making and coloristic adventures. Emotionally expansive readings and psychologically dense inferences are read through the renderings of form, color and space.
